HOODACRES DELPHINIUMS

HOODACRES brings you another season's greeting. It has been a year of steady advancement in Delphinium originations. Long strides have been taken since the Hoodacres work began in 1910. The many thousand plants in our fields to-day stand as living witnesses to marvelous changes in both color and form, among which are the Hoodacres double Whites, and their derivatives, the delicate pinks and lilacs.

Imagine a plant, strong yet graceful, standing seven feet in height, in common soil, the spike long and shapely with perfectly formed florets nearly three inches across of delicate pink suffusing the wide open flower, like the first glow of color on snow-capped Mount Hood as the sun creeps up behind it on a spring morning. Coming mysteriously out from the unseen, the creative side of life, and appealing to our material vision and sense of the beautiful it is as a message of love from the homeland of love. The plant described is no doubt already named but the name has not arrived. Very likely it will come in much the same strange manner as Pearl Necklace, Angel's Breath and Velvabee.

In both seeds and plants we are giving our patrons the benefit of each year's improvements over our previous high standard. The list of such as we offer follows.

HOODACRES GIANT JAPS

This list of Japanese Iris is truly one of outstanding originations and not of out-dated mediocrities. Many named varieties have been discarded as too far below our standard and thousands rogued for the same reason. Too many growers are loth to eliminate stocks which have been superseded in quality. If out of a thousand hand-crossed seedlings we get two or three of rare merit we are pleased, but such plants cannot be sold at the price of the ninety-and-nine.
